

THE ART OF TRANSFORMATION

HSO, the results company, is known the world over for partnering with some of the best known organisations. For years, it has been considered a leader within the business community, working with organisations to transform their operations by harnessing the power of Microsoft technology. It enables digital transformation with an 'industry-first' vision. It aims to fill gaps in technology and business processes with industry-driven best practices, and also invests in the future through its people. HSO has launched several strategic initiatives to strengthen its presence and industry transformation capabilities for Microsoft cloud business applications around the world, and this includes India and the Philippines.

For this region, the business rests in the capable hands of Prabhat Nagraj. As Managing Director for India and Philippines, Prabhat lives and breathes transformation. Over an illustrious career that spans many geographical locations, organisations, teams and work cultures, Prabhat has amassed a massive wealth of knowledge on the hows and whys of being in the business of transformation. A career that started as a consultant saw him steadily grow into a capable and resourceful leader who has led large and small teams across organisations like Microsoft, Hitachi, DXC, Amazon and RSM. He then progressed to Hitachi where he was the Vice President for the Americas. Over the years, Prabhat developed a reputation for being a problem solver. Testimonials across various stages of his professional life call out his ability to get things done, no matter how challenging the situation.

Having established himself in a global environment, Prabhat found himself with a unique opportunity when HSO decided to strengthen its operations in Asia, specifically in India and the Philippines. In his current role, he has enabled an ecosystem that is mutually supportive of each other, and celebrates its successes as a team. Following HSO's global mantra of the idea of leaders over managers, he also has the right mindset to create an inclusive work environment, while simultaneously ensuring employees as well as clients have the best solutions.

His experience across multiple projects in international companies has equipped him to adeptly handle the unique challenges that come with working with several global teams for a single project. He brings in a unique blend of understanding minute details of every project, while giving his team the independence to solve problems their way. He is testament to a style of leadership that is steady and dependable, yet one that ensures every capable and willing individual has the scope to grow and learn as much as they would like to.

Keeping employee interests in mind, HSO also adapted to the new normal of remote and hybrid working across the country. There may have been initial doubts about engaging with employees, and fostering a sense of team spirit within the organisation. However, Prabhat is not the kind of leader to sit by. He is on the road most days in a month, travelling across the country to engage with his employees and understand the on-ground and real-time challenges of working in the business of transformation. He is the kind of leader who believes in keeping an open door to his office, even if it means that the door may be in a different city every week.

Ever an optimist, Prabhat is looking forward to bringing in several key changes to operations in this part of the world, while retaining all of the best practices that have worked towards ensuring customer delight for years. Since taking on this role, he has effectively transformed processes to achieve optimum utility of resources, creating a mindful and inclusive work environment, and effective lines of communication for clients to harness the power of Microsoft's technology. Prabhat lives up to HSO's philosophy of mindful transformation. With his cognisance and infectious enthusiasm, he is a leader to watch out for. Prabhat Nagaraj
