

CoinDCX's Community Program has so far successfully engaged thousands of crypto enthusiasts in 15 cities in India, including Indore, Mumbai, Pune, Bangalore, Prayagraj, Patna, Lucknow, Coimbatore, Chandigarh, Ahmedabad, Hyderabad, Jaipur, Kochi, Kolkata and Kanpur. The company has recently added 100 more chapters in Tier 2 and 3 cities to boost Web3 education.

EMPOWERING USERS THROUGH WEB3 EDUCATION: A LEGACY IN THE MAKING

Sumit Gupta, Co-founder and CEO of CoinDCX, shares his vision for the Web3 industry, emphasizing the importance of education and ecosystem building to make the internet an equitable place, where instead of extracting value from their users, Web3 networks will share value by creating opportunities for them.

You have built a successful crypto exchange in India that has been able to overcome many challenges. What factors do you think have supported your success?

Our success is due to the strong determination of our team to make a profound impact in the Web3 industry. We focus on creating innovative products that customers love, doing business with complete transparency, and staying closely connected with the community. We understand community is key, and we strive to keep them informed about the latest happenings in the space. Education is critical to ensuring our community is equipped with the knowledge and latest developments.

Our vision when I co-founded CoinDCX with Neeraj in 2018 was to democratize finance through decentralization and share value with people. After five years, this continues to be our guiding principle.

Why is education so important for the crypto industry, particularly in the context of Web3?

Firstly, many people are still unfamiliar with the basics of crypto and blockchain technology, sometimes leading to misconceptions and fear. This lack of understanding can hinder adoption and growth. Secondly, the crypto industry is constantly evolving and changing, with new projects and technologies emerging all the time. Finally, the Web3 movement is all about decentralization and putting power back in the hands of users.

Over the past five years, our mission has been centered on educating the masses about crypto. With the emergence of DeFi and Web3,

Sumit Gupta, Co-Founder & CEO, CoinDCX.