

DR. PRANEETA VARMA

THE SENSITIVE SENSIBLE DESIGNER

D'STUDIO designs responsive spaces that embrace and support people's emotional, psychological, physical wants & needs. Praneeta defines herself as an empathetic designer - 'people first' is what she believes in.

Meet Dr. Praneeta Varma, a leading interior designer and founder of D'Studio, a full-service design boutique with a diverse clientele. With over a decade of experience in the industry, Praneeta has established herself as a leader in the field of interior design with her unique approach to creating spaces that are both beautiful and functional.

Often asked how her doctoral studies in Sociology aligns with her Interior design qualifications and is relevant to her profession as a practising Interior Designer, Praneeta's reply is accompanied by an amused smile as she says, with absolute conviction, "my interest in sociology stems from my deep interest in human beings in particular, society at large and in a philosophy of design thinking with user centricity."

To Praneeta, her interests and studies also help her understand the impact of the built environment on people's well-being. One of the things that sets Praneeta apart from other interior designers is her ability to truly listen to her clients and understand their needs and preferences. She takes the time to get to know her clients and their lifestyles, which allows her to create spaces that not only look beautiful but also function perfectly for the people who will be using them.

Praneeta approaches the design of spaces with a focus on functionality, aesthetics, and comfort. She considers factors such as layout, natural light, and the selection of furniture and finishes to create environments that are both visually appealing and functional. She takes into account the needs of her clients and strives to create collaborative spaces that are comfortable and promote a sense of community. Additionally, she also incorporates elements of sustainability, ergonomics and technology integration in her designs. Through her work, Praneeta aims to create spaces that are not only functional but also inspiring, promoting creativity and collaboration.

“ Human-centred design is a philosophy, not a precise set of methods, but one that assumes that innovation should start by getting close to users and observing their activities. ”

– Donald A. Norman

Praneeta is also a thought leader in the industry and frequently speaks at design conferences and events. She is also a mentor to young designers, and is passionate about sharing her knowledge and experience to help others succeed in the industry.. Praneeta is known for her ability to hire and nurture young women and guide them along the logical passage of years, balancing careers and families.

Throughout her career, Praneeta has worked on a wide variety of projects, from small residential renovations to large-scale commercial spaces. In addition to her design work, another aspect of her design philosophy is her focus on sustainability and responsibility. She is always looking for ways to incorporate eco-friendly materials and practices into her designs and is committed to creating spaces that are not only beautiful but also mindful of the environment.

She calls her work, 'Thinking for Design', her personal take on design thinking and calls out confidently, "You Dream – we Design".
