

₹3,000 crore, has ventured into gaming and plans to roll out an ad-supported version globally.

Disney+ Hotstar, the other streamer with an international parent, holds the pole position with its 50 million paid subscribers, largely due to its Indian Premier League (IPL) viewership. But losing the digital streaming rights of the money-spinning tournament during 2023-27 is expected to halve that subscriber base and force it to rustle up non-cricket originals, experts say.

For another streaming giant, SonyLIV, the biggest driver of growth is originals and sports. Though its parent broadcaster doesn't have a presence in the south, the streamer sees it as one of the biggest growth levers. "We are active in Hindi. We've done two original shows in Marathi and will launch more. We are launching originals in Tamil in July; Telugu in November; and Malayalam by February. We will subsequently go to the other languages," says Danish Khan, Head of SonyLIV, Sony Entertainment Television and Studio Next.

A NUMBER OF HINDI-DUBBED south Indian movie titles also populate its content catalogue. Khan adds that 30 per cent of the viewership for SonyLIV's Hindi originals comes from the five southern states, while a third of the viewership for its Tamil and Malayalam movies comes from the north.

ZEEL, another streaming platform, has been building a diverse content library, backed by the regional might of Zee Entertainment Enterprises Ltd (ZEEL). It has announced more than 40 originals across Hindi, Tamil, Telugu, Punjabi, and Bengali for 2022. Sony Pictures Networks India and ZEEL are in the midst of a merger.
