keeping in mind her maximalist way of life.

112 | While Jolie's was in the making for a few years, the concept evolved once the pandemic hit. "Covid-19 has upended the world. As people look for a safe, hygienic and private place to work, meet and socialise with their close circle, a private-members' club plays a huge part," says a spokesperson for Jolie's. Jolie's has a tapas-style European restaurant with a wine bar, a charming deli with a range of craft brews, fresh bakes and coffee selections; and a cigar lounge for connoisseurs. There are also specific areas designed especially for art, music and culture, a party zone, a fully-equipped business centre and an outdoor lounge with a mini-golf turf. Jolie's is also pet-friendly. At Jolie's membership is by invite and referrals only. It offers different packages for expats, under-27s, etc., ranging from 1 to 10 years. Membership starts at ₹3 lakh for one year for individuals under 27. It has a huge reciprocal membership and provides access to over 200 clubs globally.

London-based private club chain Soho House opened its 23rd club in Mumbai a couple of years ago. "Mumbai has a rich cultural heritage with diverse ethnicities, cultures, religions and backgrounds. Our international members had been asking for a House in Mumbai. There's a big creative scene here and that has added a lot to the Soho House community around the world," says a spokesperson. The club, considered an inspiring space for working creatives, has a very young membership with nearly 46 per cent below 35. They also have a special membership for under-27s and that makes up 30 per cent. Membership at Soho House Mumbai starts from ₹67,260, and goes all the way up to ₹2.67 lakh a year. Soho House is currently present in 14 countries and members can use facilities at all the Houses across the globe. "It was in 2017 in LA when I first visited the West Hollywood House with some friends and fell in love with it. It had the perfect community, the energy, the overall setup and then some!" says Apeksha Agarwal, a Mumbai-based fashion and beauty photographer. Agarwal has visited Soho Houses in London, Miami, New York and LA, and enjoys events organised by Soho House Mumbai. Recently, there was a fashion talk with Gaurav Gupta and Anaita Shroff Adajania. Soho House also conducts art walks and screenings of films. It has a film club where members can interact with directors. Members have access to the gym, rooftop pool and library.
