

MASA, NEW YORK

PRICE $595 PER PERSON

► If you are in New York, a visit to this three-star Michelin restaurant is a must, especially if you are fond of Japanese food. As per the Michelin Guide: “To taste what may be the continent’s best sushi, experience the contemplative and very exclusive ceremony of Chef Masa Takayama’s omakase... Attention to detail is unsurpassed and at times it may seem like a bit much, but a reverential spirit is part of your meal here.” Of course, you need to book way in advance, and in case of a no-show or cancellation within 48 hours, you lose $200 per person.

GERANIUM COPENHAGEN

PRICE $430 PER PERSON

► Awarded the World’s Best Restaurant in 2022, Geranium is located on the 8th floor of the National Football Stadium in Copenhagen, and its full-length windows afford a panoramic view of the park. “The surprise, meat-free tasting menu sees many small, detailed dishes brought to the table in succession; each highly creative and original, with many layers of flavour,” says the Michelin Guide about this three-Michelin star restaurant. The focus is solely on local seafood and vegetables from organic and biodynamic farms in Denmark and Scandinavia. The tasting menu takes place over a minimum of three hours with around 20 courses split evenly between appetisers, savoury dishes and sweets.
