

GROWTH DRIVERS

► Increase in non-communicable diseases (NCDs) is leading to a rise in consumption of more anti-diabetic, blood pressure and heart-related medicines

► Also, rising diagnosis of cancer is likely to drive sales of biosimilars

► Consumption of branded generics is another area of growth for pharma companies

► The sale of specialty drugs used in the treatment of complex or rare chronic conditions is expected to increase

► With Covid-19 receding, booster doses are also likely to contribute in a major way to the revenues of pharma companies
