António Guterres warned “We are on a highway to climate hell with our foot still on the accelerator,” he wasn’t indulging in hyperbole. Although organisations have started to become mindful of their carbon footprint, a report from Rocky Mountain Institute states that the average company’s supply-chain greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions are 5.5x higher than the direct emissions from its assets and operations. Even countries are working to create regulations that require businesses to track their carbon footprint to the last milligram.

It is in this backdrop that

BOARDROOM PAIN

Five independent directors have quit Balaji Amines’ board to comply with Sebi rules, but their exit coincides with a rough patch for the company

BY PRERNA LIDHOO

► AFTER FIVE INDEPENDENT directors of Balaji Amines, a chemical manufacturer headquartered in Hyderabad, resigned in May citing “personal reasons”, the company clarified that all of them stepped down to comply with the Securities and Exchange Board of India’s (Sebi) regulations that require independent directors to resign if they complete 10 years in that position.

In addition to Independent Directors Naveena Thammis-hetty Chandra, Kashinath Revappa Dhole, Satyanarayana Murthy Chavali, Amarendra Reddy Minupuri, and Vimala Behram Madon, the company’s Chief Financial Officer Hemanth Reddy Gaddam also
