

THE ENTREPRENEUR'S PLAYBOOK

Sougata Ray, Professor of Strategy and Entrepreneurship (Practice); Chair Professor and Executive Director, Thomas Schmidheiny Centre for Family Enterprise, Indian School of Business

» Ray said entrepreneurship is contextual and every new enterprise has a greater possibility of failing than succeeding

» Talking about why new enterprises fail, he said that not meeting customer expectations is one of the biggest reasons start-ups fail, apart from factors such as product, cost, legal conflicts, high cash-burn, poor unit economics, intense competition, below-target net sales, etc.

» He further said that the alignment of essential factors, such as timing, team and execution, idea, business model and funding, help a new venture succeed. Also, the creation of a new venture is not a linear thing as it requires a lot of experimentation and failing; hence entrepreneurs should have the courage to pull the plug
