

108 |

you can change your preference on the app. Your personal nutritionist acts like your mentor, follows up on a regular basis, maps your progress and tweaks and tailors your diet to help achieve your health goals.

Meal delivery services are rather popular in western countries and are fast catching up here, too. According to a report by Apollo Research titled, 'The Exponential Growth in Meal Kit Subscription Market', the global healthy-meal subscription market was valued at $3.73 billion in 2022 and is expected to touch $13.76 billion by 2032, growing at a CAGR of 14 per cent.

While meal subscriptions are mostly sought after for their calorie specifications, what differentiates them from other traditional options is that the meals are curated and personalised based on your requirements. "They are wholesome, diet-oriented and freshly cooked," says Bengaluru-based IT professional Nimit Acharya who has been getting food from Eat.Fit for the past few months. Eat.Fit is the meal subscription venture of health and fitness company Cult.Fit. "I have been working out at Cult.Fit, but in order to lose weight I need to also eat healthy," says Acharya. He has subscribed to Eat.Fit's Signature Salad package for lunch on weekdays (vegetarian monthly package for ₹4,342 for 22 days) and gets a fresh salad delivered to his office every afternoon. Each salad comes with nutritional information such as calorie count, protein, carbs, etc., printed on it. For dinner, he has subscribed to the Weight Loss thali package and pays ₹4,104 for 30 days.

Eat.Fit delivers in 12 cities including Bengaluru, Chennai,

MEAL SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE POPULAR DUE TO THEIR CALORIE SPECIFICATIONS, BUT WHAT SETS THEM APART FROM THE COMPETITION IS THAT THE MEALS ARE CURATED AND TAILORED TO EACH INDIVIDUAL