

FINTECH AND PLATFORM INNOVATION EXPLAINED, ODESSA STYLE

Technology is at the heart of everything we do today, revolutionizing all industries, including financial institutions. The fintech revolution has been a game changer, both from the point of technology and creating differentiated customer experiences. It has completely transformed how enterprises scale, operate and serve their customers.

At Odessa, we serve the Asset Finance industry with our market leading product and are harnessing the immense potential fintech holds. I have been a part of Odessa since 2014, and over the years have worked with the founding team, business leaders, and customers to scale our strategy and growth. As the Chief Technology Officer, I have had the incredible opportunity to work with highly talented cross-functional teams to spearhead product and technology innovations to shape our industry. From day one, our mission has been to create and deliver transformative products to our global customers. We have a long history of reimagining our technology stack in anticipation of the future, constantly pushing the boundaries of what is possible.

Reimagining What's Next

Walk our hallways, and you will see a common thread tying Odessans together – a strong company culture anchored on a growth mindset focused on learning, innovation, and collaboration to deliver value to our customers. Our global cross-functional teams thrive on building new features, technology capabilities and enhancing customer experiences. We recently codified this ethos in our employee value proposition “We Build What’s Next” – build what is next for our employees in terms of their career and growth, customers, and the market at large. This robust technology and innovation engine has scaled largely due to our intentional roadmap strategy (around 30% of our total overhead spend on R&D) and our agile operating models that enable us to deliver quarterly commercial product launches a year to our customers.

Our philosophy has always been “think customer/user first”; we hyperfocus on evolving the technology stack

Roopa Jayaraman,
Chief Technology Officer, Odessa

to solve business problems and deliver meaningful customer experiences. The Odessa Platform offers customers the ability to transform the complete gamut of business operations, from digitizing key stakeholder touchpoints, automating processes and driving data-driven outcomes. Behind the scenes, this is powered by modern technology architecture – Digital, API-first, Cloud native, and extensible – and a DevOps mindset to deliver rapid time to value.

The market validation of these efforts are the accolades that we continue to receive from customers and leading industry bodies – recently, Monitor recognized Odessa third time in a row as ‘Most Innovative Companies’ for our innovations and industry disruption in the Asset Finance industry.

The Odessa Advantage!

In my experience at Odessa, I found a creative learning playground to drive product and platform roadmaps, technology innovations, and GTM for global markets. At the same time, I have enjoyed a supportive and nurturing team culture where I can be my authentic self.

Odessans are a diverse global community of over 1,200 professionals with a strong technology and consulting talent hub in India. Our people-first mindset includes thoughtfully crafted programs and initiatives to create unique talent experiences for our diverse workforce. But what makes it truly different? The fact is while we are built to last, we are also ever-evolving, responding to realities, and constantly addressing the emerging needs of our people. We are hitting our 25th mark this year, but the great thing is we have never shied away from rewriting our playbook.

As an Odessan, beyond the day-to-day, you have the space to experiment with ideas and bring them to life through our flagship innovation program, Launchpad, or leverage opportunities to learn and grow through our robust learning and development programs through Odessa University. We also have an Employee Assistance Program on days you seek additional wellness support or simply want to blow off some steam! In terms of our community engagement, we are providing access to quality education and healthcare to children from low-income households through dedicated programs in partnership with nonprofits. What’s more, our workforce has around 40% women, which has helped foster a diverse, inclusive, and equitable workplace for all – this gives me immense pride as an employee and a leader. I could not be more excited for the future; Odessans across the globe are championing what is next – be it for us, our customers, and our communities.