

Goodbye, Russia

Russian IT is poorer with Salil Parekh's Infosys joining the likes of Oracle and SAP in the corporate boycott of the country due to the ongoing conflict with Ukraine. Infosys has less than 100 employees in Russia and does little work there, but it is still a strong symbolic move. Experts say the conflict could force other IT companies to halt their investments in Eastern Europe, which might actually be good for the Indian market.

—PRERNA LIDHOO

TWEET, TWEET

WITH TWITTER agreeing to a buyout by maverick billionaire businessman Elon Musk, the decks have been cleared for a smoother deal rather than the hostile takeover tone it started off with. Yet, Musk has made clear his views that the company has been poorly run. He also plans to take the social media company private. What happens to the current board and top management? Elon, nay, time will tell.

—VIDYA S.

MUTUAL FUNDS, HERE I COME

CHANDRA SHEKHAR GHOSH, Founder and CEO of Bandhan Bank, is diversifying his business portfolio. Bandhan Financial Holdings, the promoter of Bandhan Bank, has recently led the ₹4,500-crore acquisition of IDFC Mutual Fund along with GIC and ChrysCapital. With the acquisition of IDFC MF, Bandhan Bank can now offer multiple products to its customers, helping grow its market position in the long run.

—TEENA JAIN KAUSHAL

New VC for NITI Ayog

Economist Suman Bery, a former DG of NCAER who has worked with the World Bank for 28 years, has been appointed the third Vice Chairman of NITI Aayog. He takes charge at a time when the economy is facing multiple challenges including slowing growth, rising inflation, and hardening of commodity prices induced by the Ukraine crisis.

—RAJAT MISHRA

THE GREAT RESIGNATION

Sequoia India's Managing Director Shailendra Singh has resigned from the board of embattled start-up Zilingo, the latest high-profile firm from the storied investor's portfolio—after BharatPe and Trel—to come under scrutiny for alleged corporate governance malpractices and financial irregularities. Three makes a trend, they say.

—BINU PAUL

From January to March 2022, domestic airlines carried around 248 million passengers, compared to 234 million passengers in the corresponding period in 2021, an annual growth of 6.06%, data collated by DGCA shows

The Right Moves

CIVIL AVIATION minister Jyotiraditya Scindia is giving analysts a run for their money. Following his February forecast of growth in domestic air travel breaching pre-Covid-19 levels in two months, 400,000 passengers flew on April 17, the highest for a day in two years. He also launched 400+ flights on regional routes, while getting several states to reduce VAT on jet fuel to 1-4 per cent. We like. We like.

—MANISH PANT

