Juiced up to deliver maximum productivity, this tablet is the optimal device to keep a tab on the market

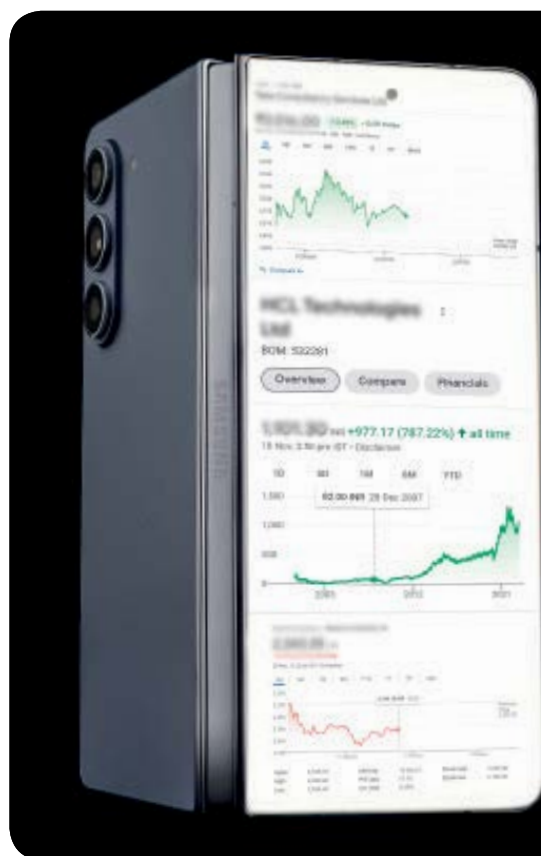

TABULATING WINS

While the US-based Apple leads the market in tablets with its iPads, it's the South Korea-based Samsung's Tab S9 that takes the cake if you're looking for an on-the-go trading companion in a tablet form-factor. With its big and powerful screen that features a stunning AMOLED 2X display, this 11-inch tablet weighs less than 509 gm, is a sleek 5.99 mm, and IP68 rated, which makes it water and dust resistant. It comes with a companion stylus that has enhanced tip sensitivity for less accidental clicks, and is powered by the Snapdragon 8 Gen 2 For Galaxy processor, making this device a treat to use when keeping an eye on the market, or handling heavy trades.

Pocket Beast

As one of the most powerful smartphones in the market today, the Samsung Galaxy Z Fold5 is a pocket powerhouse that offers stellar multitasking chops for your always-mobile lifestyle. With a 6.2-inch screen that unfolds into a 7.6-inch display, the Z Fold5 has enough screen real-estate to keep you updated about your investment portfolio, and then some. Be it tracking your stocks on any trading app, keeping abreast of market news, or staying in touch with colleagues on the go, the bigger screen proves to be super convenient. Combine that with the phone's Flex mode that allows you to place the device at different angles on a flat surface, and you won't ever feel the need for a PC to trade.
