AWAY FROM THE hustle and bustle of the City of Joy on a balmy Saturday morning, more than a hundred golfers assembled at the historic Tollygunge Club in the posh southern part of Kolkata to compete on the greens. The city had been drenched in showers a day before, but the skies were clear when the first golfers ambled in at 6:45 in the morning to register for the exclusive and invite-only Royal Ranthambore Business Today Golf 2023-24's Kolkata leg of the tournament. By the time they teed off at 8 am, it was bright and sunny, and all the participants were pumped up and ready for action.

Over the next few hours, they showcased their golfing chops in the sun, displaying great competitive spirit and camaraderie. Even though most in the field were familiar with the twists and turns of the Tolly Club's 18-hole, 70-par, 100-acre championship all-season course, which was originally started as a plantation, they still had to contend with its quick greens and strategically placed pins, along with the multiple hazards scattered across the fairways and, of course, the intense heat and humidity.

The draw was heavily dominated by corporate leaders such as Amit Bhowmik, Head of Procurement-RSE & Asean & South Asia of Linde India; Hitesh Gurtu, Head of Marketing-South Asia at Linde India; Murali Ganesan, Executive VP & Head of Audit of ITC Ltd; Gaurav Soneja, GM of ITC Royal Bengal; Ranabir Chatterjee, VP-Deliver
