experiential travel will undoubtedly seize this opportunity. “This will likely represent sustained social validation for a considerable duration, aligning with the characteristic attributes of the luxury world.”

But cost is only one aspect of a journey that promises to be unmatched in its entirety. How many people can really say that they’ve seen all of earth and that too in one go? Combine that with the feeling of leaving the tether of earth and floating in space, even for just a few moments, and the experience promises to give you an epiphany of sorts. That brings us back to Tito, who said of his trip to space, “It was the greatest moment of my life.” BT
