

▲
HERE COME THE SUITS, MAN

It takes at least 50 man-hours to make a single bespoke suit and you need three to four fittings.

Prices usually start at around £5,000 (around ₹5 lakh) and then keep going up

If frequent trips to London aren't an option, there's still hope: The bespoke Savile Row firm Whitcomb & Shaftesbury is co-owned by Indians and has an operation in Chennai. It is possible to get a tailor from Whitcomb & Shaftesbury to take your measurements in India and the suit will be cut on Savile Row. Sadly, the prices will be at Savile Row levels, but at least you will save on airfares.

So, unless you are built like a model, think carefully before you splash out on a ready-made designer suit. By paying a little more, you can get a suit made for you that will transform your look and enhance your confidence. BT

@RaajSanghvi